Jackson County proved its strength in how we came together to face the pandemic.

United Way responded rapidly because they were ready—thanks to our community’s history of generous support.

United Way applied its unique leadership strengths to make a powerful difference. They were built for this.

Now United Way is leading the next step: Building on the community’s success to help struggling households recover and build strength to become financially stable.

United Way does what no other organization can do alone. They gather every resource, every partner and every voice to fight for the financial stability of every person in Jackson County.

United Way and our community need your help, now more than ever, to advance this work. Jackson, we got this!
